Winton kids hit the beach

Sister City sponsorship sees kids from the land have some fun in the sand

More than 30 children from the outback Queensland town of Winton have arrived in the Moreton Bay Region for a taste of life in the city and by the sea.

The visit is part of a Sister City relationship shared by Moreton Bay Regional Council and Winton Shire Council, which includes exchange opportunities for children from the bush to visit the Moreton Bay Region and kids from Moreton Bay to visit Winton.

Moreton Bay Regional Council Division Seven Councillor David Dwyer said the week's program was designed to give the visitors from Winton experiences they couldn't have at home.

"They spent a lot of time in the water, kayaking and learning how to use stand up paddleboards at Bribie Island. For children that live more than nine hours' drive from the coast, they displayed a surprising amount of skill on the stand up paddle boards!" Councillor Dwyer said.

"Water is a scarce resource in Winton, which along with much of Central Queensland is struggling through the worst drought in living history. This visit is about giving these children a chance to get away from the struggles at home for a bit and focus on having a bit of fun."

Mayor Allan Sutherland said a lot was being done to solidify the bond shared between the Moreton Bay Region and Winton Shire.

"Last year we sent some students from the Moreton Bay Region to Winton and I know they came home with a much better understanding of life in the outback. I hope these children can gain a similar appreciation of life here."

"Moreton Bay Regional Council has also agreed to sponsor Winton's Vision Splendid Film Festival again this year."

"This Sister City relationship is very important to Winton and the Moreton Bay Region and we hope the children of both regions carry it on for a very long time."

During the week, the young visitors from Winton took part in a wide variety of activities, including a trip to Wet n Wild, a day trip on Moreton Bay to see dugongs and dolphins on Wednesday, visits to Parliament House and Settlement Cove Lagoon on Thursday, and a trip to the Caboolture Historical Village on Friday. They're staying at the Frederick Marsden Youth Camp at Kallangur.

The visit is partly sponsored by Moreton Bay Regional Council and Winton Shire Council, with the support of local tourism operators, community groups and generous members of the Moreton Bay Community.

"Council is still happy to receive sponsorship donations from anyone who wants to assist with the cost of this week's exchange," Councillor Dwyer said.

"Any money donated that exceeds the cost of the visit will be donated to the Queensland Drought Relief Appeal."

Community members who wish to help sponsor the visit should contact Councillor Dwyer on 3480 6625 or at David.Dwyer@moretonbay.qld.gov.au.

Moreton Bay Regional Council has a long-standing sister city relationship with the Winton Shire Council, stretching back to pre-amalgamation with the Redcliffe City Council.

Winton is 1355 kilometres north-west of Brisbane in Central West Queensland. In Winton, primary industry is the main source of employment.

Struggling through the worst drought in living history, water is a scarce resource in Winton, so the visit was a chance to give the visitors experiences that can't be had at home.

The demise of Masters

- Poor timing and strategic error at fault says QUT retail expert
- The fate of the North Lakes store and it's staff

Masters' parent company Woolworths Limited has officially stated that it intends to exit its home improvement businesses, including the 63 Masters Home Improvement stores, and their Home Timber & Hardware business. Naturally this will include the local North Lakes store.

QUT retail expert, Dr Gary Mortimer, said that it should not come as a surprise that Woolworths will close or aim to sell-off their Masters Hardware business as they had not made a profit since its introduction in 2011 and had lost $600 million to date.

"The failure, I see, is a result of poor timing and poor strategic choices," Dr Mortimer said.

He said Woolworths had been riding a wave of financial success in its food and general merchandise businesses, when it decided to expand into the growing home improvements market.

“At the time Woolworths launched Masters, the hardware sector was dominated by Wesfarmers’ owned Bunnings, and to a lesser extent, Metcash owned, Mitre 10," he said.

“To attack a market leader like Bunnings is strategically risky, however, I suspect Woolworths forecasted revenues from its food and general merchandise divisions would support the new venture until it turned a profit.”

He said the timing of the decision was also problematic.

"Wesfarmers had recruited new Coles MD, Ian McLeod and Kmart MD Guy Russo in 2008, who brought with them highly experienced teams and international retail experience.

“By 2011, both McLeod and Russo had begun to turn around Kmart and Coles by investing in stores, cutting costs, reducing prices and creating profit; which had an enormous negative effect on Woolworths and Big W.

“With Woolworths and Big W’s revenues and market share in decline, launching a new hardware business against a market leader was always going to a disaster.

“The timing has been unfortunately a perfect storm for Woolworths; Aldi’s aggressively market growth, price conscious shoppers, a re-invigorated major competitor in Coles and Kmart, has left Woolworths management running around fighting fires."

Dr Mortimer said Westfarmers could be expected to be seriously looking at acquiring some Masters' sites.

“However, due to contractual agreements in place with US partner Lowes Hardware, Woolworths will need to buy out Lowes’ 33 per cent ownership, estimated at $1 billion, before they can off load the failing business.”

Woolworths Limited said in a statement that the process would take several months with the business continuing to trade normally during the period.

Back in 2012 when we let you know Masters was to open in North Lakes, it was said to be a $12.8 million project employing 180 people.

The Messenger contacted Woolworths Limited for information regarding fate of the North Lakes store and it's staff. Woolworths wouldn't comment on the specifics of the local store's situation, instead sending a generalised statement saying they hoped to redeploy the staff to othere brands in the Woolworths group:

"Woolworths' top priority is to do the right thing by our employees, suppliers, customers and shareholders, and we will act quickly and openly to minimise the impact of this decision."

"If Woolworths is unable to sell all of the business and has to close any of the operations, it will seek to provide alternate employment opportunities within the Woolworths Group to all current Home Improvement employees.

Woolworths said they will continue to honour product warranties, returns, lay-bys and the completion of any contracted home improvement projects such as kitchens, bathrooms and floor coverings.

If you're in possession of gift cards they will still be honoured and can also be used at other Woolworths group stores which include Woolworths Supermarkets, Big W, Dan Murphy's, BWS, Cellarmasters (full list available online).

As for the site, it seems unlikely that a buyer will step in and buy Masters as a going concern, so as to who will fill the big blue box, we can only speculate. We can't help but think that recent arrivals IKEA and Costco are wincing at the missed opportunity to avoid their own costly constructions by taking over the site. While the North Lakes site certainly isn't a candidate for them now, perhaps another big box retailer will fill the space.

Good-guy Stefano Bizzari is as excited as we are for the new store

IKEA North Lakes has been coming for such a long time that you'd be forgiven for feeling like it was still on the horizon. It's been a rumor for at least six years, and fact for only the last two. But if you park in the back of Westfield North Lakes or have driven up the Bruce lately, you'll have seen the framework for Queensland's second store being built. It's real and it's coming this year.

IKEA's second Queensland store is a coup for the region and a boon for consumers this side of the Brisbane River, especially for North Lakes and surrounds. Besides flatpacks and funnily named foods (care for some cheese on your knäckebröd flerkorn?), the 29,000 square metre store will provide over 250 new jobs across the Sales, Store Operations, Logistics, Customer Relations, Communication & Interior Design, IKEA Food, Marketing and Human Resources departments.

In the push to open North Lakes store before Christmas this year, IKEA North Lakes has announced the appointment of Store Manager Stefano Bizzarri (pictured) and key members of his team. Stefano has relocated to North Lakes following positions with IKEA in Italy, Sweden and most recently, China, where he managed the Shenzhen store, one of the top five most visited IKEA stores globally.

Taking a drive we're all familiar with but will soon no longer have to, the Messenger spoke to Stefano at the Logan store. We wanted to know how everything was coming along.

"It's a very exciting time for IKEA in southern Queensland. We are opening our second Brisbane store, so we will be more accessible to consumers in south east Queensland, specifically north of Brisbane up to the Sunshine Coast" he said.

"On the way here this morning I checked the store status and it looks like a proper store. The roof is almost completed and the whole steel construction is done. Next will be the fit out, then the wordmark (signage) installation. At that stage it will really look like an IKEA store."

On what we can expect as customers he said: "It's going to be a beautiful, brand new store, full of home furnishing inspiration.

"Customers will find an exciting new store with solutions and inspirations - many relevant to North Lakes and the surrounds.

"It will be an exciting day out for the family but also a very accessible store with people being able to come from the parking underneath as usual, or through Westfield North Lakes shopping centre."

Regarding recruitment, the newly appointed Sales, Customer Relations, HR and Marketing Managers all hail from North Lakes and surrounding areas. The remainder of the Steering Team (IKEA speak for store leaders) will bring their global IKEA expertise to the new store.

"I'm very excited to say that the management team is now on board. We are nine people with very diverse experience. We have local managers and others relocating to North Lakes.

"We are now recruiting Line-Managers and most will be on board by early April. Directly after that is when we start the recruitment of the Co-Workers (floor staff) in May" Stefano said.

IKEA recruits via both their own website and Seek.com.

Film Reviews with Ange Dean

The Big Short

The list of stellar actors in this film is breathtaking – To mention a few there's Christian Bale, Ryan Gosling, Steve Carell, Brad Pitt and Marisa Tomei. The director is Adam Mckay.

This film deals with the sub-prime mortgage bond market and the big crash which was primarily caused by the corruption from the banks and Wall Street. It was known as soon as the low interest rates ceased the interest would become unaffordable and a slow, catastrophic collapse would occur.

The only person aware of this potential outcome was Michael Burry played by Christian Bale (who delivers a brilliant performance). When Michael Burry confronts Jared Vennett (played by Ryan Gosling) with this impending financial disaster, Vennett passes the information on and he and his colleagues decide to 'ride it out', stay on course and make a killing (for themselves) and subsequently they ruined the lives of a lot of good, hardworking people.

Ryan Gosling gives an excellent performance as the smart-alec fast talking con-man and Steve Carell steps away from his brilliant comic roles and shows he has much to offer in drama.

Based on the biggest financial crash of this century one would think there's little to laugh about but the film has many witty laughs, possibly because we, the audience, unfortunately know where it's all heading.

The movie will make many of us realise that we, the general public, can be too trusting of these institutions and of those in control of the economy and realise they do not live 'in the real world' and should be monitored. Nevertheless the film is enlightening, somewhat educational, entertaining and riveting. Keep in mind it is R rated.

I'm giving it three and half stars.

Council News with Julie Greer

Representing North Lakes, Mango Hill, Griffin and parts of Kallangur and Deception Bay

Happy New Year to everyone,

Well here we are at the beginning of another new year after a fabulous festive season. 2016 is shaping up to be another big one for the Moreton Bay region with the Local Government elections on 19 March. I am looking forward to working with the local Division 4 community to ensure it remains a great place to live, work and play.

My first visit to the North Lakes Library will be on Wednesday 3 February from 10am – 11am. Come along if you would like to meet me or have any Council issues you would like to discuss with me.

Endeavour Boulevard North Lakes
Residents may have notice the contradictory speed signage that appeared recently at the end of Endeavour Boulevard. I asked council's Traffic & Transport staff to investigate and have been advised the correct 40 kph road works signs have now been put in place by the contractor engaged by Stockland to build the next stage of the North South Arterial. Please drive carefully when travelling through road works.

North Lakes Movie Night
The Movie night on Sunday 17 January was a huge success with 500 people in attendance. A big thank you to the North Lakes and Kallangur Lions for organising the sausage sizzle, Bunnings for the face painting, MBRIT for the photo booth and the North Lakes Leopards for the fairy floss and popcorn. Everyone enjoyed Peebo and Dagwood's awesome performance and the movie "Big Hero 6" was big hit with the kids.

Drives for Learners Booklet
Pick up a copy of the new Drives for Learners in the Moreton Bay Region booklet available from council's customer service centres or libraries. The booklet provides a collection of planned drives and maps to provide learner drivers with a range of different road environments (both rural and urban) across the Moreton Bay Region. The drives are designed to help learner drivers develop safer driving habits and gain experience while accruing the 100 hour on-road driving requirement of the Graduated Licencing Scheme.

Mobile in Moreton
Council, in conjunction with Qld Police and Transport & Main Roads, have released a mobility scooter and motorised wheelchair booklet which details safe ways to use these devices within our community and includes road rules, registration and buying or lending. Copies of the free booklet are available from my office. I also have a limited number of orange mobility scooter safety flags to give away.
Please call my assistant Leanne on 3480 6705 if you would like a flag and/or booklet.

My Husband wants an open marriage

Hello Leonie,

I live in WA but always down load your column. I am writing to you to get some of your famed direct answers. I have been to see a counsellor about my issue this week but it was just me talking and talking and her nodding and nodding for 50 minutes so please do your usual thing of being up front and no beating around the bush.

I have been married for 18 years and about 10 years or so ago my husband said he would like an open marriage because he felt that being with only one person for a life time was not doable. I said no and he dropped the idea until about three months ago when he said that he wanted an open marriage or out of the marriage all together.

I thought that he would drop it as he has in the past but he is staying firm and wants an answer before he flies to Hong Kong next month. He won't go to couples counselling and I feel like I am being blackmailed. We could never have kids and I wonder if this is where the lack of commitment is coming from but I am so torn and upset that I haven't a clue really. I don't want to get a divorce but I sure as hell don't want to share my husband with anyone either.

I have done a lot of reading online and it seems that some people make this work but I don't know how they do. I thought about negotiating that he only have a one night stand once in a while so there would be no emotional attachment but I can't stomach the thought of that either.

What if he attracts a crazy cow that causes trouble? What if he falls in love with the other woman and I lose him anyway? What if I get a disease from him and what if he starts to never come home and I am all alone anyway but sitting here with no dignity at all. Obviously I can't talk to my family about it and I have given the counselling thing a go. What would you do?

Name withheld/Freemantle

Hi,

This is probably going to be one of the shortest responses I have ever given. All your 'what if's' are valid and can and do happen. Open marriages are usually only considered as a last ditch effort to save a marriage and I have never seen this be a successful solution. I find that the decision to be with others is actually the last act in a very sick and troubled drama.

You talk about dignity and I would like to see you preserve yours and find a man that is willing to commit to you and only you.

You can recover and love again. Broken hearts heal but living in a situation that you can't stomach could end up being a permanent condition that is toxic to your self esteem and health with the heartache never leaving.

At the end of the day it doesn't matter why he wants an open marriage so bad - whether it's the lack of kids, adventure, and excitement or whatever. You could play the guessing game about his reasons until you are rocking back and forth in the foetal position on the bed. All that really matters is that you want no part of it.

You ask what I would do. I wouldn't be waiting until he goes on his Hong Kong trip. I would kick him out now and get on with building a better life for myself that was up to my own ethical standards and no one else's.

Til next week, Leonie

Kindness in North Lakes

I moved to North Lakes from overseas last year. During my dog walks I meet and talk with so many nice people everyday. Shortly after we moved in, both neighbours invited us for dinner. When I had a car crash a few months ago, a lady came up to me and the other party involved and gave us both a cup of coffee... simply because she thought we could use one. Just this morning while on a long walk with our foster dog it was hotter than expected resulting in the dog taking frequent breaks on the side walk. A friendly lady driving by noticed us and asked if we were okay and offered us a lift home.

I am happy to call North Lakes home and would like to extend a big thank you to all these friendly residents that are so helpful to others. It is the small things that count, it is these things that make a great community!

Real Estate Agents Are People Too

I'm not one to usually complain, but after countless incidents I think it best to let community realise that at the end of the day a little respect and common decency would go a long way.

Not all Real Estate Agents are out to do the wrong thing, most have good work ethics, my family are struggling to pay bills and afford food some weeks as it is, so it is disappointing when as working class people who strive to always do the right thing by others, have half a dozen signs kicked over, stolen, vandalised and destroyed each week.

Know that most Real Estate Agents survive on minimum wage and pay their own fuel, phone and overheads. So signage quickly adds up to easily a couple hundred dollars, this does not cost the agency, but rather the Real Estate Agent directly. I understand that people may have had a rough time in the past with other Agents and hold personal grudges, but at the end of the day, that is someone's lively hood who is trying to feed their family too, so please understand that when you destroy someone else's property, someone might not eat, buy medication or pay the bills that week, and try and imagine your family in those circumstances.

I think youth is constantly misunderstood, however in this situation please when you go out on a Saturday night with friends and have a good time, think before you steal and destroy cones, signs etc.

If anyone sees this happening, please try and intervene and report them if possible.

Taurus April 21-May 21: Despite your efforts to keep someone out of your business, this person is drawn in anyway. Ironically this may provide the solution to your troubles.

Gemini May 22-June 21: an unexpected bonus or perk gives you an extra lift. This small show of appreciation goes a long way with you today.

Cancer June 22- July 23: There's no time like the present for putting insecurities out on the table. Nobody's fooling anyone. If anything you may find that you had more in common than you knew.

Leo July 24-Aug 23: You prefer bold decisions, but you may have to settle for mild mannered. A compromise gets you further than an ultimatum.

Virgo Aug 24-Sept 23: once again you feel like you're at everyone's beck and call. Don't get snarky. Remember that you're the one who decides what you can and cannot take on.

Scorpio Oct 24-Nov 22: Put hurt feelings aside and get to the bottom of what's amiss. You'll find that it's not as bad as all that and the other party is truly sorry.

Sagittarius Nov 23-Dec 21: you could kick yourself for making the same mistake twice, but what's done is done. Chalk it up to experience and move on.

Capricorn Dec 22-Jan 20: Even though stakes are high, you needn't worry about getting everything right on the first go. You have plenty of time to work and re work what you do.

Let the professionals treat your home for pests
DON'T RISK DOING IT YOURSELF

Before deciding whether or not to do it yourself, it's best to weigh up your options. Applying various pest control products safely is something Sandgate Pest Controls technicians are trained to do. A do it yourself quick fix can end up costing the home owner more than getting in a professional pest controller once per year. Sandgate Pest Control can apply the chemical safely to your home without exposing your family to any unnecessary risk that comes with doing it yourself. Sandgate Pest Control are your experienced local company. They are family owned and have been operating since 1968.

North Lakes Community Women's Group Inc. News

Written by Sam Stevens Publicity Officer NLCWGI

WELCOME BACK! The year was off to a good start with nearly 70 members and visitors joining in our Meet & Greet morning. We heard some eloquent and amusing tales from our holiday adventurers; like the white Xmas without snow; meeting up with multiple relatives in multiple foreign destinations; and gastronomic Xmas feasts to make your mouth water, (and your stomach bulge). The last consisting of a `Turducken' which is comprised of a deboned chicken stuffed into a deboned duck, stuffed into a deboned turkey and described as a succulent blending of the three different flavours, wow! Following this we clustered into small groups to chat and share stories, which all sounded like an orchestration of competing nestlings.

Our motto, To meet and promote new friendships within the community, is reaching out to many women in our locality. We are one of the few friendship groups with weekly activities of every conceivable type. We welcome new ideas and rely on volunteers to assist our Executive in the form of Sub-Committees, we move with the times and would love to have you on board for our journey through 2016.

Tuesday 2nd February 09:45 MONTHLY GENERAL MEETING. Our first of the year. Once again we meet to brainstorm and format our up and coming events and activities. This usually involves a few laughs and some semblance of normality as we focus on the year ahead. This is time also for the formation of our Sub-Committees for another year. Visitors welcome.

Tuesday 9th February 09:45 BINGO. This is one of our more popular events taken in a light manner with a bit of fun thrown in. Professional or amateur, it doesn't matter. Visitors welcome.

Tuesday 16th February 09:45 GUEST SPEAKER. TBA. We are currently negotiating for someone of interest for you. Visitors welcome.

Our meetings are open to all women in North Lakes/Mango Hill – Moreton Bay district. Please refer to our listing under the Community Notice Board. For more information contact Julie, 3886 4552; Colleen, 0418 658 442; Carmen, 3491 9410. All are welcome.

Parents face penalties for missing child vaccinations

By Dr Anita, Brisbane North PHN

The Federal Government's No Jab, No Pay laws, which took effect from January 1 this year, mean parents with children who are not fully immunised will no longer be eligible for some family assistance payments.

Those parents without an approved exemption will lose child care subsidies and the Family Tax Benefit Part A end-of-year supplement, which is worth up to $726 per child for dependent children up to 19 years of age who meet educational or training criteria.

Note that vaccination objection (previously known as conscientious objection) is no longer a valid exemption, following the introduction of the new laws.

But children with medical contraindications or natural immunity (certified by an immunisation provider) or those who have participated or are participating in an approved medical research study, will continue to be exempt from the requirements.

Among the other subsidies at risk is the child care benefit, which assists with the cost of Government-approved child care services, such as long day care, after school care, vacation care and family day care.

The child care rebate will also be stopped for parents of unimmunised children. This payment covers 50 per cent of out-of-pocket child care expenses (up to a maximum amount) for approved child care and is not income tested.

While there will be some in our community who will be quite vocal in their opposition to these laws, it is worth remembering that around 92 per cent of children in our region are fully immunised by five years of age.

This excellent outcome, while now slightly below the State Government's recently revised childhood immunisation target of 95 per cent, can be sometimes overshadowed by what we read in the media.

An article published by The Courier-Mail around a month ago claimed that the Brisbane North and Moreton Bay region was an 'anti-vaccination haven' because, in absolute numbers, it had the nation's third highest rate of vaccine objection (708 families) in 2012-13.

The problem with this assumption was that it ignored there were more than 900,000 people living in the region so in reality, those families who had registered an objection to vaccines actually represented a very small proportion of the population.

This matters because an infectious disease will not be able to spread in a community where a high proportion of its population is immunised and protected from the disease. Experts often say this is the point at which 'herd immunity' is achieved.

This is a public health issue and, with the introduction of the No Jab, No Pay laws, if parents do decide not to vaccinate their children without a valid exemption, their decision will ultimately mean they are no longer eligible for the subsidies previously mentioned.

Stronger immunisation requirements should to help to improve immunisation rates among children nationwide and this will benefit all of us.
Remember that immunisation is a simple, safe and effective way of protecting children against harmful diseases that can cause serious health problems and sometimes death.

The health of children should be of paramount importance. The choice not to vaccinate on the grounds of vaccination objection is neither supported by public health policy nor medical research.

The National Immunisation Program Schedule recommends certain vaccinations at certain times and these vaccines are available free of charge for all Australian children.

Talk to your doctor for more information about your child's vaccination schedule. You can also obtain some vaccinations at school immunisation clinics and through local council initiatives.

RENOVATION ADVICE

What colours should I use on my house to modernise it?

Steve from Kallangur asks: What colours should I use on my house to modernise it? I'm thinking of rendering the brick so will need colours for this and the Chamferboards.

Jane says: The blue Chamferboards and brick base on the house certainly are dated, but with rendering and some more modern colours, you'll have this baby looking fabulous in no time.

As well as the colours on the house, I recommend that the front wall be updated. Currently there is no contrast between the brick on the house and the brick of the front wall/fence, so giving it visual depth is going to make a big difference to the street view.

Once you've prepared the surfaces on the house (that is; rendered the brick and prep'd/sanded the Chamferboards REALLY well), it's time to get ready to transform them with your paint. I suggest a light colour such as Haymes, Chamois for the Chamferboards and a slightly darker colour for the rendered areas; Haymes, Morocco Sand would be my pic for this.

What you find on two storey houses where there are different finishes on the top and lower levels, is that using a darker colour on the bottom will visually anchor the house. Imagine this whole house painted the same colour? Or even having the lighter colour on the bottom? It just wouldn't work. Also, as a general rule, you should paint different materials (such as brick and Chamferboards in this case) different colours.

Your balustrade does not look to be legal height, but if you are not making any other changes to the house that require council approval, then you will get away with just painting it for now. I think a new balustrade would totally transform this house and the cost would be in the vicinity of $3,000 - $4,500. If you did decide to replace the balustrading, go for a timber and tension wire look with the tension wire fitted vertically. Paint your handrail and all support posts a clean white. Alternatively, if you decide to keep the balustrade as it is for now, just prep and paint it white.

Either option will really freshen up the façade of the house. Use this white colour on the window sills too, to link the white to elsewhere on the house. Repetition and cohesion of one or two elements on/in a home are hallmarks of good design.

Now frame the front of the property with a dark coloured front wall. I love a dark fence as I feel it really solidifies and defines the boundary line and says 'This is my property'. You could easily raise the height of the existing wall and render it to tie back to the house. Keep going with the hedging along the front as this is another way to emphasise and soften that front boundary.

Lastly, use the front wall colour on your gutterings and fascia too. A darker colour at the top of a multi-level house (guttering or roof usually) helps put a visual 'lid' on it. So, the name of the game in choosing your colours is to think about cohesion (colours that link to one another somehow), repetition (repeating the same colours, textures and materials throughout) and visual weight (which helps you create balance, depth and visual stability).

Hopefully all that doesn't too Gobble-dee-gook; but it is design-speak for getting a great result!

Good luck!

Get your finances in order this year

with these 3 money saving tips

A new year is the perfect time to get your finances in order and get financially fit'.

Mortgage Choice chief executive officer John Flavell said while no-one likes to think about their financial health, becoming a better budgeter doesn't have to be a laborious task.

"Successful budgeting is all about making better financial choices. Just because you are on a budget doesn't mean you have to cut out all of life's luxuries – far from" he said.

Mr Flavell said the key to successful budgeting is to not see it like a chore, but rather view it as the perfect way to get more bang for your buck.

"At the end of the day, you have to be realistic about your goals. And in order to make your budget work, it is important to allow for treats every now and again. Creating a savings plan doesn't mean you have to cut out all of your favourite things, it might just mean you have to scale them back from time to time."

Mr Flavell said if borrowers actively cut back on some of their habitual expenses and re-evaluate the way they spend money, they might be surprised by the impact it could have on their hip pocket.

Mortgage Choice offers the following top financial resolutions to help you become financially healthy in 2016.

1. Review your financial alliances

Data from Mortgage Choice shows more than 50% of Australians worry about their finances on a regular basis. But while the majority of Australians are worried about their money, it would appear they don't want to do anything to change their situation, with 53% indicating that they will not make changes to their financial situation over the coming year. While reviewing your financial situation can seem like a hassle, it can save you a lot of money. Ask yourself, have you been with the same lender, health care provider or even insurance company for years? If the answer is yes, you could be doing yourself out of a bargain. Research your options online and see whether or not there is another provider or lender on the market that can offer you a better deal, like lower fees or greater interest on your savings account.

> Getting online and hunting down free entertainment in your local area will allow you to still go out and save money in the process.

2. Be diligent with your finances

One of the easiest ways to spend less and save more is to keep yourself accountable for the money you spend. If you know you do not have the diligence to pay off your credit card in full each month, cancel it. If you do take a diligent attitude towards your finances, then frequent credit card use could provide you with significant perks. Today, lenders offer great incentives to those who use their credit cards on a regular basis, including frequent flyer points, cash-back bonuses and extended interest free periods. Of course before you commit to a credit card, it pays to read the fine print, so you know what you are getting yourself in for and always make sure you pay your bill in full and on time each month.

3. Find free entertainment

During the holiday season people will (understandably) want to go out more in order to catch up with family and friends. Unfortunately, frequent outings aren't necessarily cheap and can cause your budget to blow out. Thankfully there is a way you can still go out without breaking the bank. Getting online and hunting down free entertainment in your local area will allow you to still go out and save money in the process. Opting for free or low-cost concerts, lectures, outdoor movies and art shows even one night per weekend can easily reduce the entertainment budget by $50 to $100 per month.
